

We bring remediation to our students, right where they are.

In-Home, Online, or at Your Child's School

Regardless of learning disability, our students receive effective and efficient remediation or tutoring to improve their reading fluency, spelling, writing, reading comprehension, critical thinking and math.

Our remediation services are individualized for students struggling academically due to a learning disability.

Our tutoring services are effective for students with isolated academic difficulties or who need a little extra help.

We differentiate our services by combining remediation strategies with immediate generalization to coursework for enhanced and prolonged improvement.

Parent tips and/or training is also key to empowering the entire family to stimulate continued mastery and independence with reading, critical thinking, and comprehension.

These programs employ a multisensory approach of research-proven programs to develop and strengthen weak connections with letters, words and spoken and written language.

These process-based remediation programs permeate to the core of the learning disability and differentiate from content-based (homework help) tutoring programs, which do not get to the root of the processing difficulties.
